Under the direction of Dr. Nicholas Hoover Wilson, served as a graduate student research assistant on a project aimed at comparing the diffusion of two different interdisciplinary schools of theory: subaltern studies and Straussian political theory. In this role, I used Web Scraping data collection methods to identify and collate all known works associated with subaltern studies and Straussian theorists.

1/2017 - 5/2018, Research Assistant, Stony Brook University, Stony Brook, NY.

Under the direction of Dr. Nicholas Hoover Wilson, served as a graduate student research assistant on a project affiliated with Yale University to survey current graduate research methods education in American Sociology. In this role, I used Web Scraping data collection methods to extract information about graduate-level research methods courses being offered in sociology departments in the United States.

5/2016 - 8/2016, Research Assistant, Stony Brook University, Stony Brook, NY

Under the direction of Dr. Jennifer A. Heerwig, served as a graduate student research assistant for a study examining the relationship between gender and campaign contributions. 1/2014 - 5/2014, Project Coordinator, Rohnert Park, CA.

Under direct supervision of Dr. Michelle Jolly, served as Project Coordinator for the Sonoma County Women's Oral History Project (SCWOHP), which collected stories from women who played significant roles in Sonoma County women's movements through the
